No Mention is Made in Report of Russia's Role in Japanese Conflict

By John, M. Hightower WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.

—(AP)—A master plan for constructing a peaceful Europe out of the ruins of war emerged today from the decisions of the Big Three conference at Potsdam. But Russia's role in the conflict with Japan remains cloaked in the same secrecy as ever.

The plan provides for a stripped-down Germany, shorn of territories, wealth and power. The nation that once aspired the world dominion is to be limited to farming and "peaceful, domestic industries." And it is to be subjected to years of Allied control until it earns its way slowly back into the family of sovereign

The plan provides also for a reshaped Poland, augmented by huge slices of Germany and stretching westward to within 50 miles of Berlin and for the addition to Russia of one-third of the territory of German East

It leaves most other decisions, Three agreed on a five-power council, including China and France in addition to the United States, Britain and Russia. Assuming China and France agree to the plan, the five foreign ministers will hold their first meeting in London September 1.

Religious Remarkables Religion Is Masculine

"One of the things returning servicemen are looking for is a masculine religion." This is what many people have been saying of late. Such a statement is unfortunate because it implies that religion is something "soft," that it has little or no appeal to practical, realistic minds. It is misleading because, in the sense that it takes courage and determination to live up to its precepts, religion is always "masculine."

One can understand that veterans who have seen war at its worst and have been deeply stirred by its lessons might be tempted to smile when someone refers to ministers who "are merely chaplain to glorified Ladies' Aid Societies." This is merely a deceptive figure of speech. Religion might have little value if it were intended only for the pious and God-fearing. Actually, however, it is intended for all men in all places and under all conditions. The need for it is as universal as the need for food.

No one put a "soft" label on religion when it spurred thousands of chaplains to risk the dangers of foxholes or air-bombed battleships; when its ministers sat by beds of stricken, agonized men. Neither should less dramatic aspects of religion be derided. Religion is just as "masculine" when it tries to get a truckdriver or a society dowager into heaven as when it gives its last comforts to a dying soldier.

Religion is meant to put stamina into weak human souls. It is meant to inspire the good to higher goals, to perfection. It is a force forever at battle with evil. If some choose to misrepresent or reject it, it is because most often they themselves are not "masculine" enough to meet its demands. That is what the veteran must re-

For both spectators and participants alike it was a field day Sunday at the Kiwanis-sponsored first annual model plane contest at the Sedalia municipal airport, which drew a day long crowd estimated at between 6,500 and 7,000 persons.

The Sedalia club, the Knuckle Busters, with the largest number of entries, 19, won the eight-foot real airplane propeller and four members of the club earned awards. Four other clubs, the Sky Kings and Wing Motors of 'Kansas City, the Hell Cats of St. Joseph, the Gas Devils of St. Charles as well as individual entries from Topeka and Alma, Kas., Independence, Mo., and several other communities, par-
